You Are Here

Now, where are you going?

And how are you planning on getting there?

TC

NRA

There are so many paths to choose from. But which one is going to take you where you want to go?

Dorothy had it made! Life would be easy if we had short people assuring us of the correct path.
You can see it in a student's eyes when it's time to choose a major — "Where's the yellow brick road?"
Pick your path and stay on it.

AWW

You pick your path. Now are you going to walk, run, thumb it, or sit down and cry? What's your vehicle?

Russell L. Dilling, Second Place "Getting There" Theme Photography

RLD

It can be high-tech
or shoe leather.
Even the simplest methods can get you there.
But get going. Even if you pick the right path, you've got to add locomotion to get there.

So you come to college to get an education so you can get where you want to be. You follow a map to Keene. That was easy enough. But, now what do you do?

Decide which way you're headed.

RLD

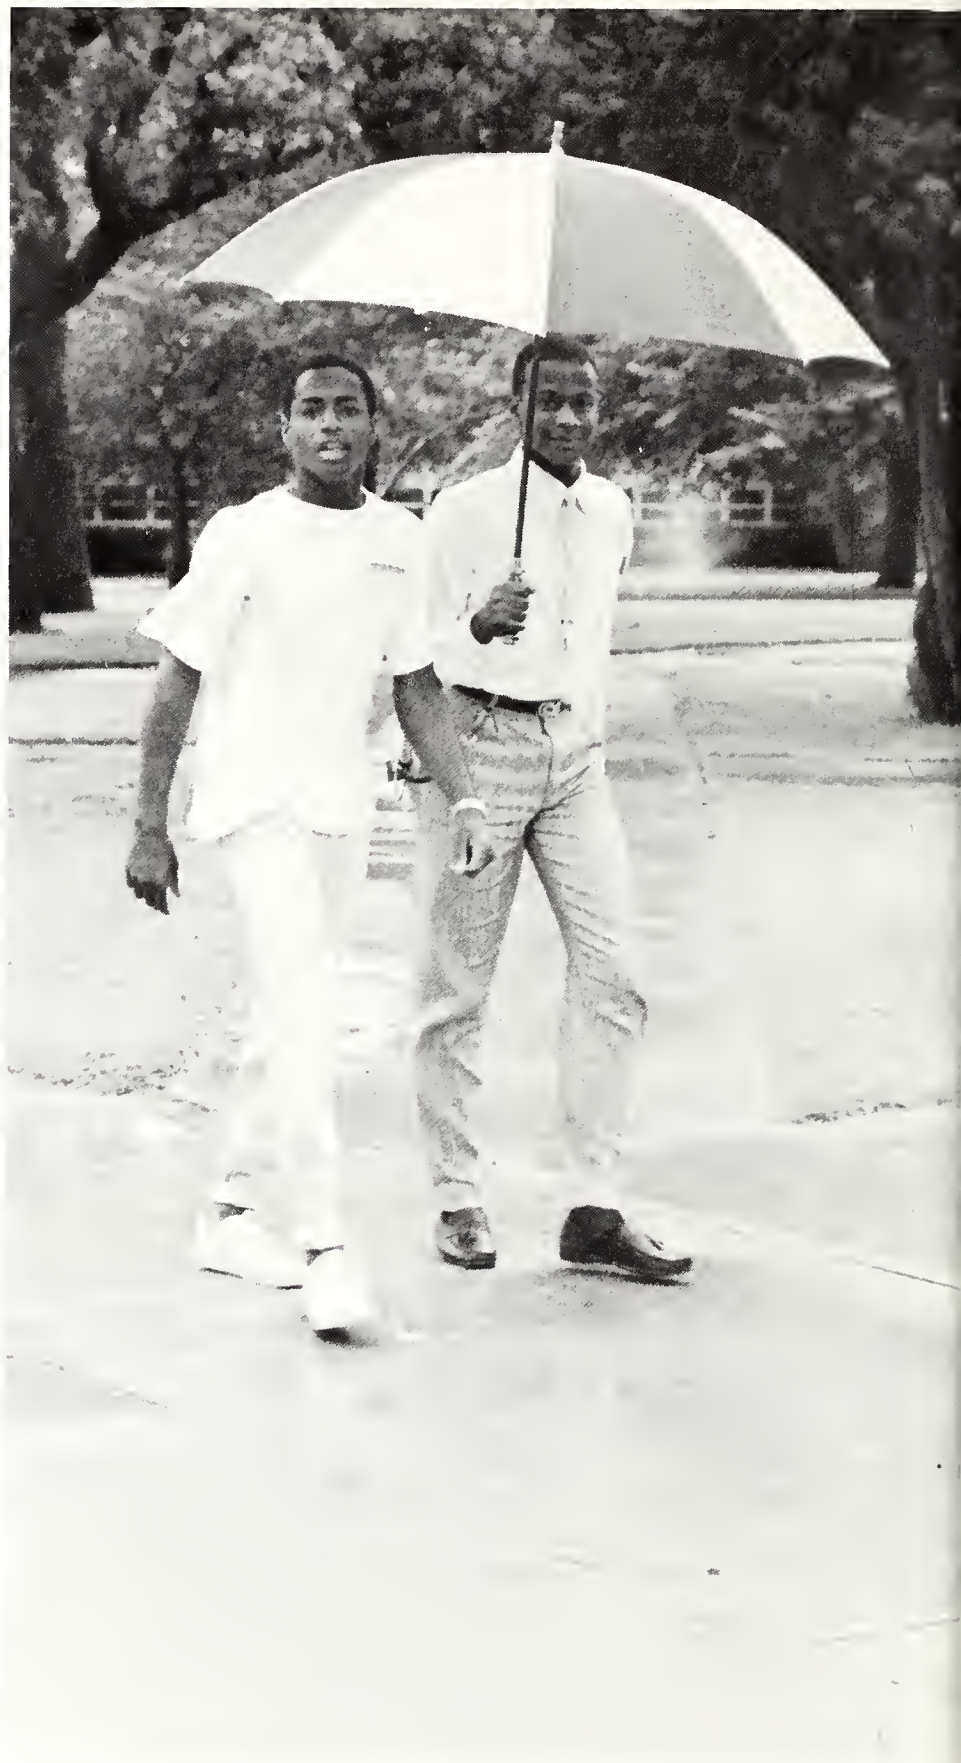
Sign up for your path at registration and doggedly walk that path until you arrive at the diploma.

EBC



Southwestern Adventist College is a great place to do just that. Because no matter which path you're taking, there's always a friend along the way to hold your hand or give you a lift.

I can't see around the bend!

Don't worry. The Map-Maker knows where you need to go. It's sorta like the song "All the Way."* If you let God plot your course, you'll get where you need to go. There are roads too numerous to mention that you may walk. Where those roads will take you, only a fool would say. But if you let Him lead you, it's for sure He's going to lead you all the way. And whatever direction on Earth that may be, with the Lord guiding, that's the place to be.

* With apologies to Frank Sinatra.

By unanimous vote, the Mizpah staff proudly dedicates

"Bob and Bev are a very fun-loving couple. Bob is a demanding instructor, and he expects a lot from his employees, too. But he's always open to a good joke. He's very encouraging and helpful in both classes and work.

Bev is one who makes an office fun. She knows when to push you and when to let up. She takes time to understand her employees. She's very patient. They're both very socially-oriented, outgoing, and fun, but they also put in long hours and hard work. I've learned a lot from both of them."

Mindy Woods

"Bev is fun to work for. We go through the style section of the newspaper and look at the clothes — 'That's ugly!' 'That's interesting,' etc. She's just nice. She tells me about her kids.

Being a Sweathog has been an incredible experience. 'Basil the Rat' was an incredible experience in and of itself!"

Julie Olson

"Bob does a lot that goes unnoticed. He's the only teacher I know who's called up a forgetful student to come to the final test. People like that are what make this college special. The Mendenhalls aren't paid enough.

I think our parties are what set us apart from other organizations on campus. You can tell we have a good time because we feel free to make noise."

Ivan Bartolome

this book to Robert R. and Beverly A. Mendenhall

Mizpah: Describe Bev and/or Bob in one word.
Lisa Vollberg: Bev — outrageous!

Jim Landelius: Bob — cool.
Randy Stout: fun-loving.
Curt Seebeck: Bev — That's impossible . . . talkative.

Andrew Woolley: enthusiastic!
Chrissie Cummings:
Bob — "Surrender, Dorothy!"
Bev — vibrant.
Brandeis Hall: Bev — COWABUNGA!!! Bob — intense/insane.

LuAnn Venden: Bev — capable.
Caroline Cameron: Bev — Eternal Pan
Bob — chocolate!

Steve Lieblang:
Bev —
Friendly, organized

Robert Vargas:
married . . . weird!
Tonya Albright: vivacious!
Debbie Cothran: Bob — unique.

Michelle Perilliat: "Well, Bob is scary . . ."

Ivan Bartolome: Bob — eclectic. No, eccentric is even better. Bev — concerned. Bev's always concerned about people; about me.

SWEATHOGS INVADE MENDENHALL HOME!

It is a hallmark of being a Sweathog (a communication major, sponsored by Bob Mendenhall and John Williams) that you eat doughnuts and watch John Cleese's "Basil the Rat" after you elect officers at your first departmental assembly, and that you go to the Mendenhalls' house for "Johnny Carson 25th Anniversary" parties, "Academy Awards" parties, "It's a Wonderful Life" parties, etc. Well, the first party of the '87 fall semester was an "Emmy Awards" party on September 20. Bev had to be at the cafeteria preparing for the Malcolm Forbes luncheon during the bulk of the party, but when she got home, there were 40 sweathogs in her house. They had people in two different rooms, watching two different TVs. "We had 60 people signed up, but only 40 showed up, thank goodness!" Bev exclaims. "I tell you what! If Bob gets any more communication majors, Hal's gonna have to buy me a bigger house!"

RICHARD NORMAN PUBLISHED

Last year, the ROADRUNNER debuted Richard Norman's poem, "These Are My Thoughts of October 3, 1986." The poem has been published again in the October 15 issue of the Review. Deborah Anfenson-Vance, assistant editor of the Review, said this [illegible] poetry is rarely seen in my office, so I put a Mizpah: Why is Bob doing this, and what exactly is he doing?

Ivan Bartolome (Junior Sweathog): "He just does it! He did it in PR, in Mass Media . . . He just does it. He balanced it on his nose once. It was pretty durn amazing. 'The Amazing Bob and His Amazing Tricks'!"

Julie Olson (Freshman Sweathog): "I really don't know. I was there but I still don't know whether or not it was a dare or just his 'Amazing Mendenhall Trick-For-The-Day.' He did it again just to prove he could!"

The Mizpah Gate

The Mizpah gate was a gift of the Class of 1937 to Southwestern Junior College. It gets its name from the college's yearbook, The Mizpah. The Class of 1937 published the first Mizpah after four depression years in which no yearbook appeared. So successful was the operation that it yielded a surplus with which they asked the college to build a nice gate to the campus.

College president H. H. Hamilton, a talented artist, designed the gate and supervised its construction of brick and petrified wood from Glenrose, a nearby town. At that time this was the main entrance to the college campus.

Branson Chrispens was president of the Class of 1937, and Leon Bishop was vice president of the class and business manager of the Mizpah.

*Branson Chrispens became a pastor and 21 years ago performed the baby dedication for this book's editor.

Dr. And Mrs. Alfred M. Micallef —
Golden Sponsors Of The Mizpah

On Clear Fork Ranch near Weatherford, Alfred Micallef breeds Texas longhorns. At Southwestern Adventist College, he is Dr. Micallef, holding an honorary doctor of laws degree, sharing his business savvy with budding entrepreneurs. In Parker County, he is a special deputy. In Fort Worth, he runs a $60 million international manufacturing company, JMK International, one of the largest suppliers of silicone parts to the automotive industry, with six locations in the U.S. and two in Europe. In literary circles, he is the author of Texas Safari.

On behalf of the students of Southwestern, the Mizpah staff would like to express its most sincere gratitude to Dr. and Mrs. Micallef for truly making this year's book possible.

Al Micallef has long been considered an important part of the Southwestern Adventist College family. His constant willingness to give of his time, energy, and knowledge has gained him much respect from the people of SAC. But Al is not only a businessman, doctor, or teacher. To us, Al Micallef is a friend.

AL MICALLEF

Al Micallef is president and founder of several successful international companies and also owner and manager of the Clear Fork Ranch, located in north Texas. Leisure time finds Al trudging thru the tundra for North American game or stalking African animals in the bush. However, his favorite pastime is hunting on weekends in the great state of Texas. Al declares the quality and variety of the exotic game in Texas are unmatched anywhere in the world.

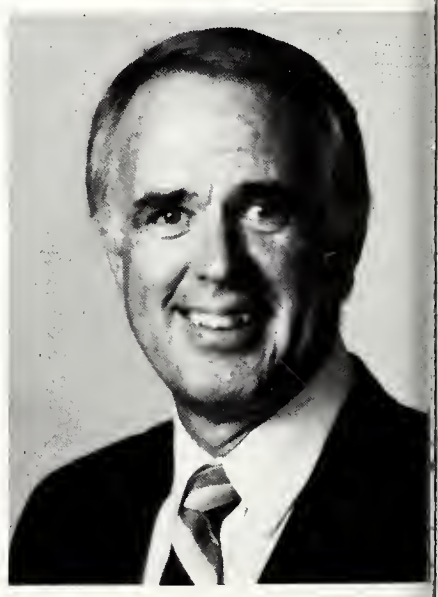
Marvin E. Anderson, D.B.A.
President, 1970
The best job in the world is the presidency at Southwestern Adventist College. I got a phony job offer on April Fool's Day once and I turned it down, b I did think it was real. Practical jokes abound. Hal Wright got this awful painting and was going to give it to me as a present and tell me it was an expensive masterpiece by an artist named Neugelmann. I found out about i had a duplicate made of his phoney, hung it up in my office, called Hal into my office and asked him what he thoug of my new painting. I hope to be remembered by the students as a regul guy. My son Eric still beats me at tenni but as I say, "Don't quit."



Harold Wright, Ph.D.
Academic Vice President, 1981
I enjoy fishing, playing banjo and guitar Anna's Sunday brunches, and the color ultra-violet. But, I can't stand inserts in magazines — I tear them all out before will read one. TV Guide is the worst! I can't follow directions. I can't ever find North, and if I did I wouldn't know wha to do with it. I'd like to be Andy and Bob's waiter at Jose's. It was so embarrassing; I forgot my underwear o a recruiting trip and had to borrow Bob'

The faculty of Southwestern was given a questionnaire in which they were asked what their favorite color was, their favorite restaurant, their favorite prank, what their name would be if they were an Indian, the best job in the world, their favorite phrase, what the students would remember them for, the kind of car they'd be if they were born on four wheels, their favorite place in the world, things that gave them problems, their greatest or most embarrassing moment at SAC and if there was anything about them that would surprise people if they knew.

Blue was the most common favorite color. Sorry Roy, Bob and Andy — the Olive Garden beat Jose's in the favorite restaurant category. Most faculty members would not (could not) reveal their most embarrassing moment and favorite prank. And by far, the majority of Southwestern faculty members thought that their job was the best in the world.

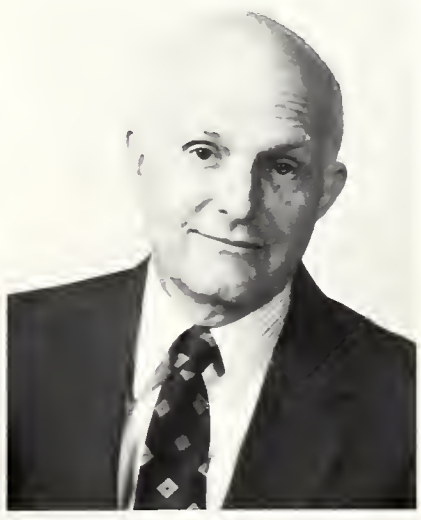
David M. Hope, M.Ed.
Financial Vice President, 1963
"Where's the money coming from?" The best job in the world is mine — business manager. It's like the bumper sticker that says "I'm depressed — nobody wants my job." Problems? People who don't pay bills. If I was an Indian I'd be Wampum Grabber. If I were a car, I'd be a model T. I like the Canadian Rockies, pizza and eating at Jose's. I'll be remembered for my Texan accent. My most rewarding experience has been watching my wife, two daughters, brother and son-in-law graduate from SAC. What was second most rewarding was seeing SAC become a four-year college.

Miss Eleanor M. Allen, M.S.N.
Associate Professor of Nursing, 1981
I'd like to be a Hawaiian Sunset Watcher for a living. My favorite place is Hawaii. I like the color burgundy, easy listening music, eating at Spaghetti Warehouse, and being on time. I'd be a Lincoln town car if I came on four wheels.

Clinton Anderson, M.A.
Library/English and Fine Art Instructor, 1985
I fell off a coal shed and broke my arm pretending to be Superman. I like gardening, because I enjoy eating. I like tacos and pizza, because I never seem to get enough of them. Can you grow tacos and pizzas? I like the color blue, because I think that must be God's favorite color; He made the sky with an illusion of that hue. Comment-allez-vous, s'il vous plait?

Dee Anderson, Ed.D.
Associate Professor of Education and Psychology, 1979
"Always look on the bright side." I like bright colors. The best job is working at SAC. I enjoy Mexican food, traveling, reading and sports. I can't think of anything wildly embarrassing that has happened to me at SAC.

Luz Arauzo, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Modern Languages, 1979
I love to chew gum! I'll be remembered for International Festivals, food fairs and historical fashion shows. I love the color mauve, Peruvian food, books, music, antique dolls, gourmet cooking, sewing, and quilting. I was so embarrassed when I went to class with shoes that didn't match.



William S. Aston, Ph.D.
Associate Professor of Business, 1985

Yvonne Baker
Secretary to the President, 1979
I can't tell you my favorite prank, because I plan to try it again. I was so embarrassed when we got stuck midstream in our Jeep with six passengers. If I were a car, I'd be a Jeep so I could see lots of beautiful country. I love the "Switzerland of America" in western Colorado. I can't remember the spelling of "affect" and "effect." I like classical music, some Neil Diamond and Julio Iglesias.

Miss Joy Blake, B.S.
Student Accounts, 1987
I love the color lavender, chocolate, painting and coin collecting. 'There is something that would surprise people, but I'd rather not surprise people.'

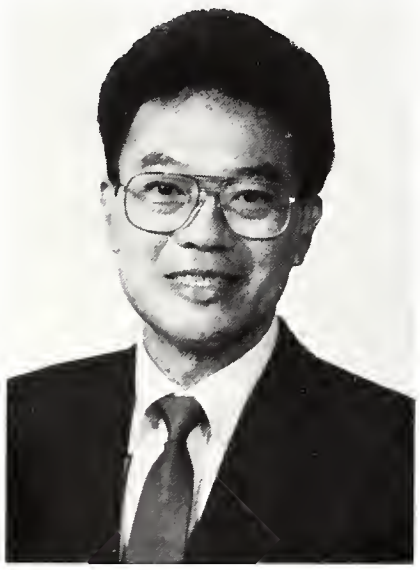
Elder Victor Brown, M.A.
Chaplain, 1985
I love Italian food — especially Eggplant Parmesan. I'm sure I'll be remembered for my frantic pace. It would surprise you to know that I'm really very shy . . . if you believe that, I'm surprised! The best job in the world is the one I have . . . if there were more of me!! I can't remember which high school different students come from. I sure enjoyed putting the longhorns in Hal's office. "Blessings on you!"

Thomas G. Bunch, Ed.D.
Professor of Health and Physical Education, 1977
My hobbies are many — restoring old wood boats, fishing and collecting baseball cards and coins. The best job would be thinking up ways to spend money. I'll be remembered as an intramural official. I like eating at the Olive Garden. If it weren't for graduation and camp meeting, I don't know what I'd do.

Roy K. Campbell, Ph.D.
Assistant Professor of Physics, 1984
Isn't science wonderful? I'd love to be an astronomer on Mauna Kea, Hawaii. I like guacamole. My greatest, most rewarding moment was on September 27, 1984. I'll be remembered as "The Chalk Thrower." My favorite prank was the "KJCR 'open mike' sting." My name would be "Laughing Badger" if I were an Indian, and if I weren't an Indian, I'd be a '52 Chevy. My favorite color is 656.3 nm, my favorite music is "Broadway Bluegrass Fusion," and my favorite place on earth is 44° 39.6′ N 110° 43.1′ W. "Where did I park my car?"

Constancio Castro
Building Maintenance, 1984

Arthur V. Chadwick, Ph.D.
Professor of Biology and Geology, 1984
I wouldn't be a car. I'd be a covered wagon. I like green. Maybe a green covered wagon. If I were an Indian watching a green covered wagon go by, my name would be Sitting Bull. My favorite place in the whole world is the Grand Canyon. I love Chopin, Mexican food, computers and research. The greatest/most embarrassing/wildest/most rewarding moment/project/experience to ever happen to me is every new day. The best job in the world is mine!



Watson L. Chin, Ph.D.
Professor of Mathematics, 1973
"In other words . . ." Ask me about the time I recited the "Bean, bean" rhyme to a group of students and faculty. My favorite color is plaid. I like Chinese food, calligraphy and photography. I can't tell you something about me that would surprise you if you knew because then you'd know. (Daughter Michelle says her dad wanted to be a philosopher at one time.)

Dale L. Clayton, Ph.D.
Professor of Biology, 1981

Robert G. Cooper, M.S.
Associate Professor of Library Science, 1967

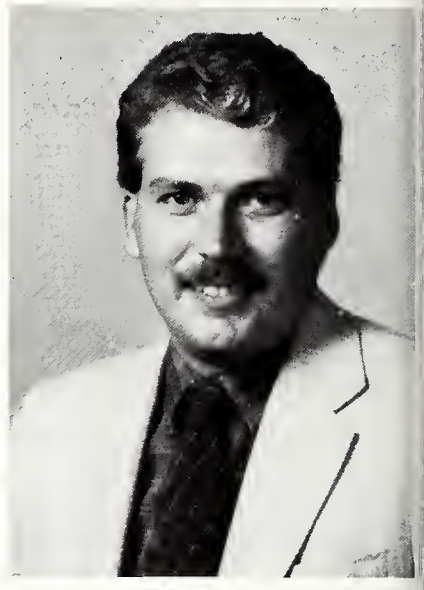
Vivian Cooper
Committee of 100 Cafeteria Maitre d's, 1967
I'll be remembered for checking IDs at the door of the cafeteria. It has been very rewarding seeing the students mature and develop and leave SAC to really make something of themselves. The best job in the world would be to be a taster in the milk chocolate factory! I enjoy stamps, all kinds of needlework, camping, house plants, oil painting and the color pink. My favorite restaurant is the Olive Garden.

Andrea Culpepper, B.S.
ADP Secretary, 1987

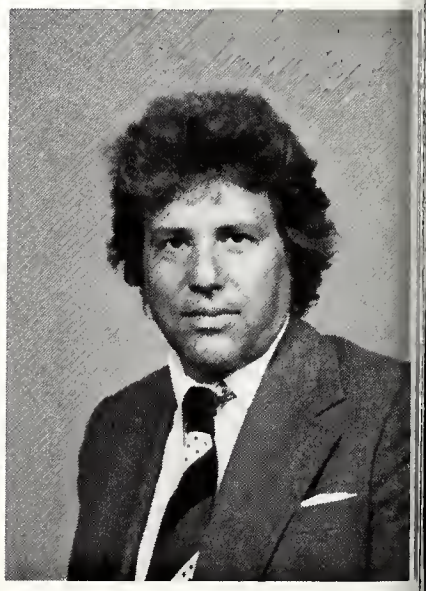
Kim Deardorff
Josephine J. Roberts Recording Studio Director, 1986
I like not wearing shoes when I work. Developing the first professional production recording studio for any Adventist college — The Josephine J. Roberts Recording Studio — was my most rewarding project ever. I'd like to write jingles for national commercials and maybe a movie theme song, but the best job in the world is what I'm doing now. I can't remember people's names! My current project is planning the perfect prank.

Jeanine Dilts, B.A.
Dean of Women, 1968
I'd like doing field research all over the world for bird migration patterns. I like Mexican food. All kinds of Mexican food. My favorite color is blue and I enjoy reading, knitting, birding and quiz shows.

Keith Dobbs, B.S.
Advancement Director, 1984
My hobby is making friends and worrying about when all of the SAC students are going to get married. I grew up milking cows on the Lazy D Bar Ranch in Vian, Oklahoma. Chrissie and LuAnn won't print my most embarrassing moment as a student DJ and KJCR. Shortly after we moved to our new neighborhood, I came home and started yelling at our cocker spaniel, Brandi, to come inside, getting louder and louder so that she and every other dog in north central Texas heard me. I went to get an incentive — a Milk-Bone, and found her inside. The whole neighborhood and I found out at the same time that our neighbors had an identical Cocker Spaniel.



Mugur Doroftei
Music Instructor, 1981
If I were an Indian they'd call me Fast Bow. I like 19th century composers the best. I am proud of the musical arrangements I've done here at SAC. If I were a car I'd be an American car. People are going to remember me for my English! My favorite restaurant in the world is my wife's kitchen. I like pizza! Keene, Texas is the best place in the world.



Jeanice Griffin
Custodial Coordinator, 1983
I still enjoy bubble gum — every once in a while it's fun. I like Mexican food and "home cooking." I enjoy working in my yard with the flowers, etc. I'm a sports fan. I like baseball and football — the Dallas Cowboys especially. Friday is the best day of the working week!

Evelyn Grosboll, M.S.
Instructor of Nursing, 1986
The best job in the world would be nursing without all the paperwork. I like almost any shade of blue and any food that tastes good, especially pasta. I enjoy reading and sewing and if you want to know if I've pulled any practical jokes, you'll have to ask someone else . . .!

Marvin Gunter, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Library Science, 1973
I have two M.A.'s and I still can't remember how to spell colloquium. Somewhere on this campus there's a P.A. system that needs adjustment. That's where I come in. My name's Marvin. I carry a mike. I like bird-watching, hiking, gardening, and Anna's cafeteria. (He spelled 'colloquium' correctly.)

Mary Ann Hadley, B.A.
Publications Editor, 1979
I used to collect rocks. Now I collect sapphires and opals. Except I don't have enough money to buy either one. I would like to be remembered as a person who believed in Christian education and loved SAC. My 5th grade heart throb (and 6th grade, 7th grade, 8th grade and forever) was Michael Ansara. He played Cochise in the TV series "Broken Arrow" in the 50's. The best job in the world? I've already got it!

Dale Hainey
Physical Plant Director, 1977

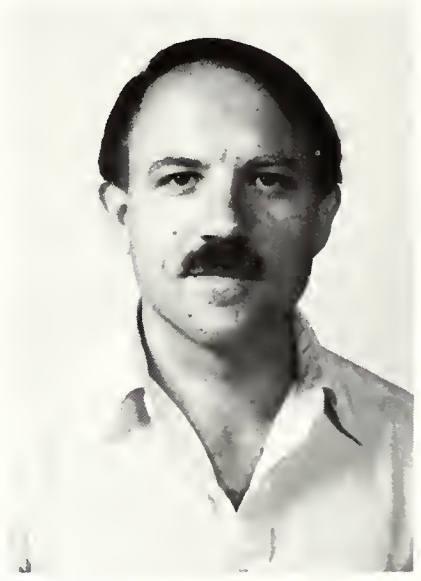
Barbara Harsany, M.S.
Associate Professor of Health and Physical Education, 1977
These students who want to get in top physical shape in two weeks. "Run for your life." My favorite restaurant is La Madeleine's French Bakery. I like growing roses, swimming, skiing, redecorating my house, cooking yummie dinners and playing my violin. I have a love affair with Johann Sebastian Bach. I'll be remembered as an exercise fanatic. I've got the best job in the world.

Donna Hassinger, M.A.
Instructor of Modern Languages, 1987

Carol Healy, B.S.
Secretary to the Academic Vice President, 1983
My favorite color is peachy-pink and Wendy's is my favorite restaurant. Wendy's Frosties are the greatest! I enjoy cross-stitch and needlepoint, and collecting rocks and shells.

Brian Hickman, B.S.
Plant Engineering, 1984
I can't remember people's names. I enjoy horses, motorcycles, swimming, water skiing, computers, photography, and model airplanes. I think students will remember me for coaching the basketball team. I love the color blue, Jose's and reading.

Melanie K. Hickman, B.S.
Financial Aid Advisor, 1983



Merritt Hines, B.A.
Cafeteria, 1983

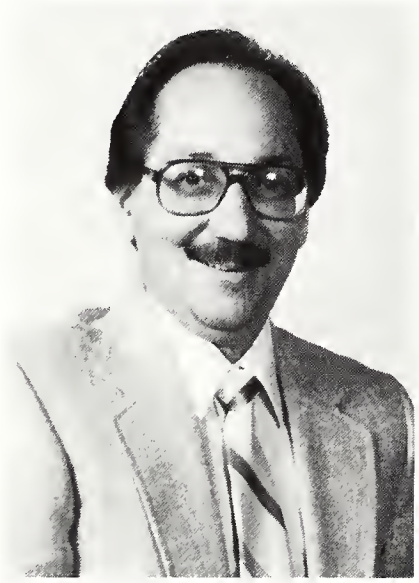
Roy Hunt, M.A.
Southwestern Diversified Industries
Internal Auditor, 1961
I'm a collector. I hate to throw anything away. I like just about any job where people are involved, especially teaching. I hope I'm thought of as one who has the interest of students at heart. I have problems with orientation — where I'm going and where I will end up.

Glenda Jolliffe, B.A.
Secretary to the Chaplain, 1986
I'd like to be a European tour guide with an unlimited budget and if I were a car, I'd be a 350SL Mercedes. My favorite prank is yet to be pulled! I'm still looking for a way to get even with Victor for all the embarrassing things he's done to me!

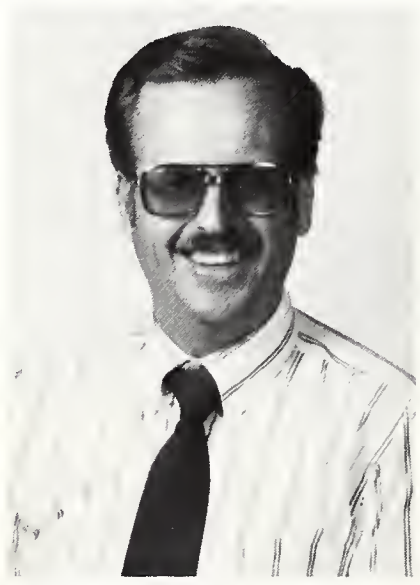
Elder Ronald Jolliffe, M.Div. M.P.H
Assistant Professor of Religion, 1984
My students will remember me for "Q." The most rewarding experiences at SAC are those when students come and say "I didn't like or understand what you were teaching until I suddenly saw it all from a new and better perspective. Thank you." That's reward enough! I love drawing and painting. I put a sign on the Greek classroom door which read, "Those who enter here must be prepared for translation."

Barbara Jones, Ph.D.
Professor of Chemistry, 1977
I dropped an entire Biochemistry class because they wouldn't study. I only dropped them for one day, though. Mr. Lowry never lets me forget the time I played shortstop for softball at faculty colloquium. I thought the fly ball was coming right to me so I stood with my glove in the air, waiting. It landed fifty yards away from me. If I were an Indian, I'd be Dancing Feather. If not, I'd be a Rolls Royce that loves Italian food, especially at the Olive Garden. The best job in the world would be lecturing around the world, spending my spare time listening to classical/easy listening music in the Bahamas.

Theresa Kennedy, Ph.D.
Professor of Nursing, 1987
During my teens and early 20s, I weighed 98 pounds and used to play the piano seriously. Both are lost arts to me now. I haven't pulled a prank yet — so watch out! I'd be an Edsel. It bugs me when someone at the green arrow waits until it is about to turn red, then goes through leaving a string of cars behind who can't turn! I was a nurse practitioner in the jungles of Nicaragua before the Sandinistas came to power.



Dallas Kindopp, M.Sc.
Director of Admissions and Registrar, 1979



Karl Konrad, Ph.D.
Professor of Chemistry, 1968
There are n ways of skinning m cats where n is greater than m. Oh, if I were a car I'd be an Audi Quattro and I'd be Yellow Tree if I were an Indian. I love classical guitar music. My favorite stunt was giving pure distilled water as a chemical unknown! A big temptation for me is watching Laurel and Hardy movies. It has been very rewarding watching the growing success of SAC graduates who have been my students.

Elder Benjie Leach, M. Div.
Dean of Students/Life and Career Planning Center Director, 1981
I'd like to be the conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra. I don't like fixing things around the house. "You can kill two stones with one bird." As a child, I grew up in a stone mansion in Massachusetts that was originally a British fort during the Revolution. I told a student that he'd have a difficult time playing racquetball with my racquet because it was a left-handed racquet.

Sharon Leach, B.A.
Public Relations Director, 1981
I always cry through "Dumbo." I cried when my kids were in Cradle Roll and put on crowns to sing "I Will Wear a Crown." I'd love to be a children's librarian, but I have trouble reading road maps. as student editor of the mizpah, i printed the entire book in lower case. I like artichokes and pasta and chocolate, and doing marriage seminars with Benjie. I also like reading history books and sleeping; one doesn't cause the other, though!

Beth H. Lowry, B.A.
Student Finance Advisor, 1974
I'm Squaw Make-Um-Pay. When I was a student dean in college, some fellows posted a sign over the dorm annex which read: " 'Til Beth Do Us Part." It is rewarding helping students. One nursing student needed $2100 to continue college. I wrote to a doctor who might be able to help her. He felt impressed to send the money he received from family and friends at his 70th birthday party. It was a little over $2100. She graduated and is a minister's wife today. I'm afraid some students may remember me as the bill collector! (At a 1987 Afterglow, a young man stood up and cried as he told how he would not have been able to graduate if it had not been for Mrs. Lowry and her help.)

Morris C. Lowry, M.A.
Associate Professor of History, 1960
I was once an enrollee in the Farmer Burns School of Wrestling to learn that skill via mail. My name would be Chief Hat-on-Pole if I were Indian and I were a car right now, I'd be a six cylinder Facts-n-datum — a '71 model. Seceded, Secession, Succession can help put me on thin ice. I'd like to be a mattress tester in a large department store. Then I could get paid for sleeping in public. Although I'm the type of fellow who can change keys in a song and not really know I've changed, I have been the choir director at an academy.

Gary Manzella
Associate Chaplain, 1981

Roger W. May, Ph.D.
Professor of Mathematics, 1978
My favorite hobby is radio-controlled helicopters. My favorite restaurant is Luby's because what you see is what you get. My favorite color is blue.

Beverly A. Mendenhall, B.S.
Secretary to the Advancement Director, 1983
I don't like to get up in front of people and speak, but I like to teach Cowabunga! ski classes. In academy and college, I won all the women's 50-yard and 100-yard dashes I ever entered. I like Italian and Mexican food, and my favorite color is teal-blue. I enjoy being the sponsor of the Cowabunga! Ski Club. I enjoy snow- and water-skiing, swimming and traveling.

Robert R. Mendenhall, M.A.
Associate Professor of Communication/KJCR-FM General Manager, 1970
I am constantly telling somebody some hot newsy item — only to be told is was that person who told me in the first place. There's nothing more fun than teaching communication at SAC. Favorite food? Are you kidding?? Jose's!! I like to wear unique and just plain weird T-shirts. My hobbies are frisbees, snow- and water-skiing, and thinking up stings to pull on Hal, Andy and Roy. You want to know about the stings? Answer #1: Prank? Moi? Answer #2: I claim my rights under the 5th Amendment. Answer #3: My favorite sting hasn't happened yet. My proudest moment here was at 11:57 a.m., Thursday, June 13, 1974, when KJCR (than KSUC) first signed on. All time favorite phrase: "Bob, this is Andy. What are you doing for lunch?"

Roger Mikesell, M.S.
Assistant Professor of Computer Information, 1984

Judy Miles, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Office Administration, 1979
If I were a car, I'd be an Italian sports car — I like the men that drive them. My favorite place in the world is Zurich. My hobbies are oil painting, flowers, gardens, shopping, skiing and having fun. I love Tom Jones' music. You'd be surprised at all my Tom Jones albums! I was so embarrassed. I almost entered a class with my blouse turned inside out.

Don Mohl
Plant Engineering, 1987

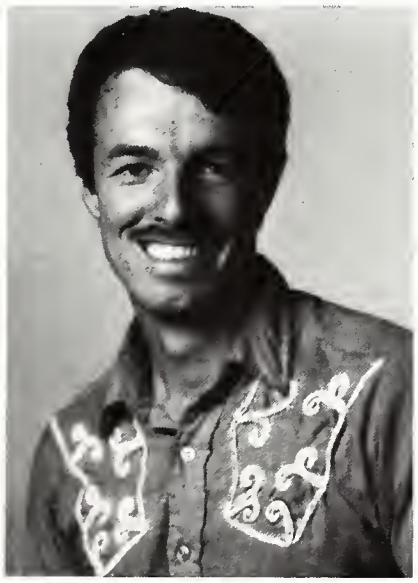
Donna Mohl, M.S.
Instructor of Nursing, 1987
If I could invent a simple, foolproof fire ant killer, I'd be as well known as Sam Houston! One of my greatest ambitions is to hang glide. I like playing guitar, canoeing, doing needlework and spending time at the lake with Don and our kids.

Patty Norwood
Secretary to the Financial Vice President, 1986
On April Fool's Day I put jelly-like crawdad lures throughout Hal Wright's office. I'd like to manage a halfway house for runaway teens and own a kiwi plantation on the side. Working at SAC is just plain rewarding because of the neat people we have to work with.

Fran Mosley, Ph.D.
Professor of History and Education, 1982

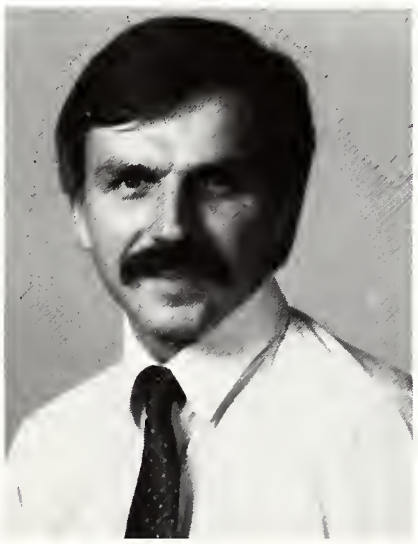
Richard Norman, M.A.
Professor of Speech, 1969
It has been very rewarding watching the "least" of my students serving the Lord for a lifetime. Contemporary "religious" music bothers me. If I were an Indian my name would be Sitting Bull. If I were a car, I'd be a Jaguar — it has a nice dashboard. The best job in the world would be watching the tide come in. My favorite color is rainbow. I enjoy eating at the Olive Garden, especially fettucine alfredo. "Along Life's way . . ."

Larry Otto, M.A.
Associate Professor of Music, 1984
I have personally built two houses, overhauled three cars and live with three women! I like the color blue, breeding Irish Setters and selling puppies, and eating Jimenez's Mexican food. Students are going to remember me for my vocal exercises. My most rewarding moment at SAC was receiving a Presidential Citation for excellence.



Paul Owens
Building Maintenance, 1982

David Petersen
Grounds Coordinator, 1980
I like camping. The best job in the world would be early retirement and being able to help other people who need help. If I were an Indian they'd call me Bald Eagle. I like elevator music. I'm a professional weed picker. In the world of cars I'm an Edsel.



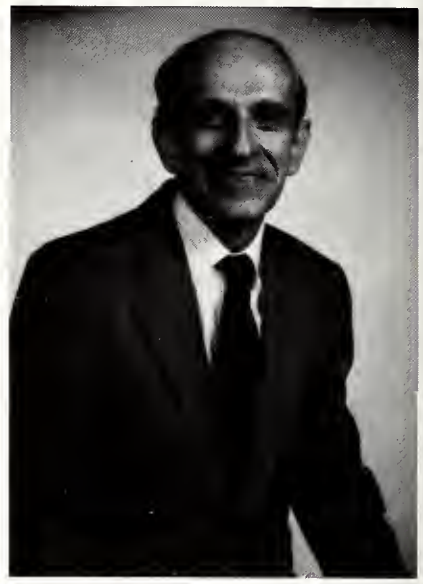
Dan Petr, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Biology, 1982
Learning to work hard is one of the best things that can happen to you. I'm a biologist. We often see only the obvious in nature. My hobby is looking for the not so obvious. I paid my bills as a college student by working as a fisherman on a boat called "Island Gold."

Geraldine Pierson, M.Ed.
Associate Professor of Nursing, 1980
"That is not my first priority." The best job in the world would be working from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday for full time benefits and pay. I'm a chocolate fiend. My favorite color is red and I enjoy Mexican food, knitting and fishing.

Marie Redwine, Ph.D.
Adult Degree Program Director, 1973
I'd like to be a limousine — I'd never be called short again. I love M&M's. I love anything Italian, especially pasta and pizza. I can never remember — does "coming" have one or two m's? (I had to look it up to write this!) My most rewarding moments at SAC were being inducted into the Alumni Hall of Fame in 1986, and receiving a college service award in 1986.

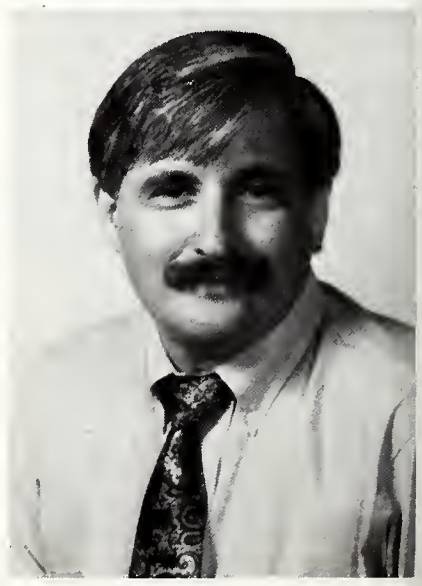
Miss Ann Robinson, M.M.
Keyboard Instructor

Angel Rodriguez, Ph.D.
Professor of Religion, 1987
I am a "Pink Panther" cartoon fanatic. I love their style! A great job would be fixing household appliances. They seem to work better with less pieces. I enjoy reading but I have problems with thinking in Spanish and saying it in English! My favorite color is light brown.



Herbert J. Roth, Ph.D.
Professor of English, 1969
The best job in the world would be teaching without having to give tests or grades! I think the most rewarding project I've had here was the completion of the SAC self-study in March 1985. I love gardening, reading, semi-classical music and eating at the Olive Garden. My favorite place in the world is 616 W. Hillcrest Drive.

Carol Sample, Ph.D.
Professor of English, 1967
I love Lauterbrunen, Switzerland. The best thing about SAC has been meeting so many terrific colleagues and students. My favorite restaurant is the Hong Kong Restaurant on Garland Road in Dallas, and I love Chinese food. I enjoy traveling, photography, reading and listening to music. I have seven teddy bears.



Stephen J. Sheel, Ph.D.
Professor of Computer Information Systems, 1987

W. Robert Sheppard, D.Min.
Professor of Religion, 1977
I ran down to the gym to play basketball after class, thinking that I had put on my gym shorts underneath my dress pants, then discovered with one leg already out of my pants that I hadn't. The gym was full with an all-girl gym class. My hobby is sports, although my secretary says it's being lazy. I haven't pulled my favorite prank yet; it's yet in the future! I have the best job in the world. My worst problem is students with "sob story" excuses; they know I'll probably buy it.

Erwin Sicher, Ph.D.
Professor of Education and Social Sciences, 1976
I took a group of students on a tour of Europe and these kids kept telling me that they would wear me out because I was an old man. Well, I'll tell you! When we got to Greece, I challenged these kids to a race around The Stadium. And this "old man" beat the pants off of these kids! We also went climbing in the Alps. On one side of the trails the mountain went straight up, on the other, straight down. A crazy American kid wasn't paying attention and nearly fell off. Now they'll only let us climb mountains you can roll off, not fall off. We also visited a Czechoslovakian castle at the same time as the Premier of China. I was lecturing to the students and I got all excited about Czech history, ya know. A policeman came and told me to be quiet — "Sssh!" That doesn't work for Sicher — I kept going!

Anna Simpson, B.A., A.D.A.
Food Services Director
My favorite restaurant is the Olive Garden and the SAC cafeteria. I enjoy camping, swimming, traveling, throwing chocolate cream pies in Dan Yancy's face, and dropping ice water down Victor Brown's back! I like to wear the color blue and my favorite phrase is "You Dum-Dum." My most rewarding project at SAC is the Sunday brunch, and I think that's what the students will remember me for.

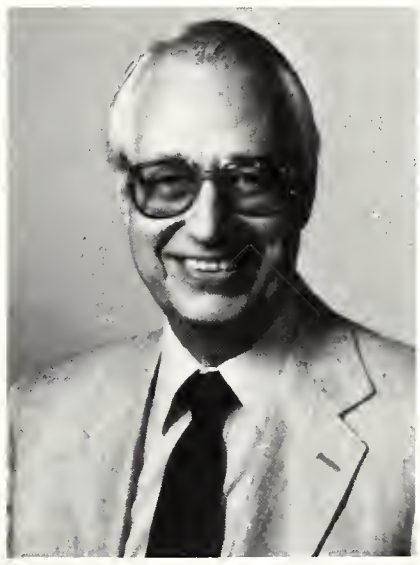
Cindy Small, B.S.
Financial Aid, 1987

Steven R. Sowder, B.S.
Data Processing Director, 1980
I like blue, Blue skies, blue water, blue eyes. Blue is God's favorite color. My favorite style of music is the Blues. I love chocolate and Colorado. I'm Fix It! at SAC. Something with Trixie, my BTI 8000 baby, has always got to be fixed.

Steve Stringfellow, B.S.
Dean of Men, 1986

Charles M. Underhill, Ed.D.
Professor of Education, 1961

Alan W. Weis, M.B.A.
Instructor of Business Administration, 1986
I sold my tattered yellow "blankey" to my grandfather for 50 cents when I was four or five years old. Life is tough. When I'm talking to my classes, my tongue fails when I try to say "regularly" and "particularly." It was also difficult to talk and keep a straight face when I was teaching one afternoon and a person mooned me out in the hallway! I taught class in a toga on Toga Day. I've caught over 150 rattlesnakes in the last seven years. Locally, I love Jose's. Worldwide, my favorite German food can be found in Munich, Germany, and at home.



Arthur L. White, M.B.A.
Associate Professor of Business Administration, 1978

Sharon Wicker, B.B.A.
Accounting Office

John Williams, M.A.
Assistant Professor of Communication, 1987
My wildest moment was trying to get to SAC from DFW with Dr. Wright driving. My most rewarding moment was getting here. If I were an Indian my name would be Lost Eagle. If I were a car, I'd be: Broken. Favorite restaurant and/or food: Jose's (Mendenhall, Woolley and Campbell forced me to put down "their" favorite. I haven't been here long enough to have a favorite restaurant, and they won't take me any place else). Favorite prank pulled at SAC: I haven't pulled one yet (although I'm told my being hired may qualify), but I'm thinking. Is there something about me that would surprise people if they knew? Of course not. Shock and horrify maybe, but surprise? I don't think so.

Andrew P. Woolley III, Ph.D.
Professor of English, 1978
"Whatever." Simply red. My favorites are Hedary's and Jose's. My favorite prank was the phony radio broadcast — a triple sting on Hal, Bob and Roy. I'd like to be Elizabeth Taylor's divorce lawyer — the income would be steady, unlike the client. I hate snakes. My most rewarding project at SAC has been the drama group — its creation and growth. Even with a Ph.D. I can't remember which is which — metonomy and synechdoche. I suppose it's important.

Donna Woods
Counseling Secretary
When I lived in Harmon Hall, I went down the hall one night and tied pantyhose from doorknobs on one side of the hallway to doorknobs opposite them, so the girls couldn't get out when they woke up. If I were a car I'd be a Jaguar for my daughter, Mindy. Students may remember me for my "mountain range" desk. I'd like to be a buyer for a department store. Then I could shop to my heart's content with somebody else's money! I can't believe my daughter filled out this form for me and didn't tell me what she put down!

Epilogue

Then there was the faculty member who was quite happy to tell us about helping Milt Siems plaster a Texas A&M bumper sticker on the outside of Bob Mendenhall's third story office window, just as long as Bob didn't find out who he was.

There was a giant stuffed fish with a jar of tartar sauce — but enough about that story . . .

There was a professor who was terribly embarrassed when he almost introduced his secretary to someone as his roommate.

Somebody put liquid Era in the fountain — but enough about that story . . .

One faculty member said it was life that gave her problems, while another said she couldn't remember what gave her problems!

Another said that her hobbies weren't publishable.

Someone who shall go nameless stuck a fishing pole out his office door and dangled a crawdad lure on Patty Norwood's shoulder. (Guesses anyone?)

One man said that his favorite place on Earth was anywhere with his sweetheart. (OK! OK! That was John Williams. Enough of this mushy stuff!)

Two faculty members got even with a student notorious for his pranks by supplying him with a piece of jalepeno cake at his wedding.

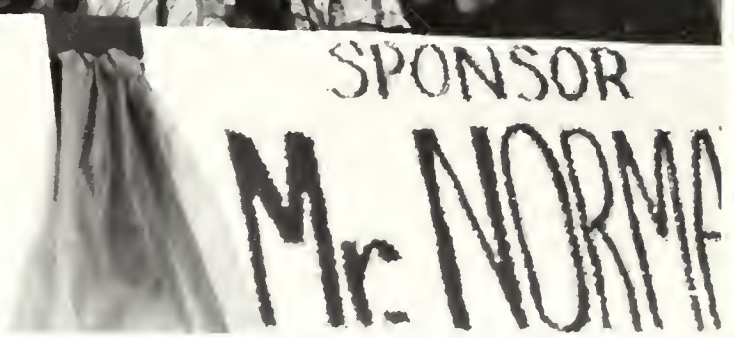
One faculty member always asks whether or not the Cowboys won their last game on his quizzes.

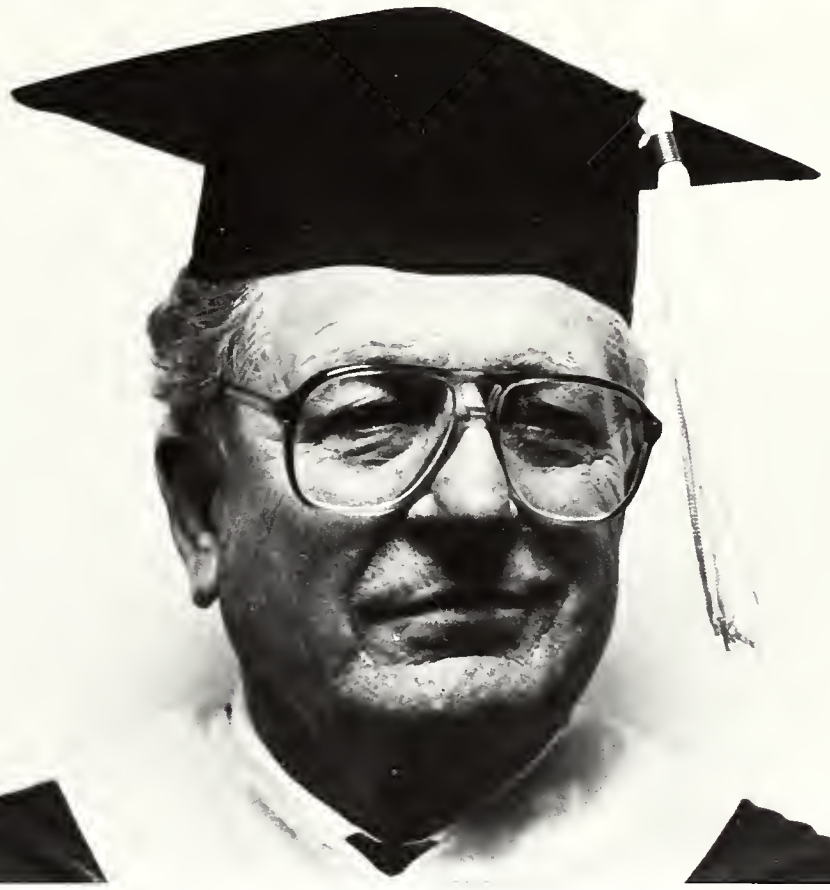
Somebody admitted to sneaking two men into an all ladies' establishment.

Two faculty members when asked if there was something about them that would surprise people if they knew, replied, "Yes."

Someone thought that turning letters of "Wheel of Fortune" would be the best job in the world.

Organizations





He's either a wonderful man or a little crazy. Mr. Richard Norman has donated his time to listening to Senate members and Student Association officers argue, fight, and resolve problems at least once a week for 14 years.

In Senate and S.A. meetings he remains a calm bulwark through screaming and hysteria as he watches molehills turn into mountains and back into more acceptable molehills.

He's a sport about everything, consenting not only to donning a toga over suit and tie, but to sitting in scaffolding for the "S.A. Squares" while wearing the most outrageous shirt to be found on campus. And after all this, he still describes working with the S.A. as "the happiest part of my life, ever."

Yes, he's a wonderful man and he must be a little bit crazy . . . and we all love him!

The Student Association Officers

Mike Cruz, President
"Thank you so much for this honor. I am all choked up! This Norman award is such a small token of your thanks to me for my leadership. It hasn't been nearly as difficult as I thought it would be working with all of you. And who could forget all those wonderful times: battles over the budget; sleepless nights planning and worrying about events. It's all been great!"

Paul Kevin Wells, Vice President
"Dear victims (a.k.a. those that have had to work with me),
It's been a good year; it's also been very exhausting. I hope that I haven't gotten on too many nerves. Please forgive me for being such a geek at times. I know how I can be. However, if we're reading this now, we obviously survived, so I take back what I just said. Besides, who wants to hear apologies for a year that was so great? I want to say what a pleasure it's been serving as Vice President this year. I really enjoyed it. I hope the next person who serves as V.P. will also be so fortunate. Thanks so much for all of your support. Especially the people suffering from black lung disease (remember the banner)."

Rhonda Carter, Secretary
"I'd like to take this opportunity to thank those of you who voted me into the office of S.A. Secretary. I love this college and am very proud to be part of SAC and our student government. I would like to express a special thanks to Donna Woods for all of her help with the '87 Mizpah, Mr. Norman for his kind advice, and Kevin Finley for his constant support."

Chrissie Cummings, Mizpah Editor
"Thanks. Mom and Dad for everything; LuAnn and Brandeis for being weird with me; Alan and Jim for daily smiles, hugs; Ivan for his contageous optimism; Sharon and Mary Ann for wonderful creative consultations; Ricky for implanting a phone in his ear to answer questions three times a day; Jon for making Trixie cooperate; Mrs. Woods for being a sponsor again; and Mr. Norman for teaching me how to make speeches — he won't admit that now."

Darilynn Edwards, Senator-at-Large
"Family, Friends, and Fans, I am honored to hold the office of Senator-at-Large. I hope that I was able to live up to what was expected of me. I would like to thank my fellow officers and Senate members for showing me the ropes, and making my life easier. This has been a rewarding year for me and I feel that closer friendships and acquaintances were made through my contact with you, the student body. Thank you for your support."

Nora Peppers, Mugshots Editor
"Receiving this Norman is the biggest thrill of my life. Being in S.A. the first time was great, but being in S.A. the second year means you really do love me (sob, sob). Thank you (sob), thank you. Seriously, I do want to say that the best part of being in S.A. is to be able to work with one of the most wonderful persons I know — Mr. Norman."

A Night At The Normans

When an actress is nominated for an Academy Award, and she wins, she receives an Oscar. When a Southwestern Adventist College student runs for a Student Association office, and wins, he/she receives a "Norman." Just as the Academy Award has been known as the Oscar for as long as anyone can remember, Mr. Richard Norman has been the beloved sponsor of the Student Association. It has been said that the best part of winning an S.A. election is working with Mr. Norman. We, the '87-88 S.A. officers, thank Mr. Norman for all he's done.

"Thank you, one and all, to those of you who voted for me. To those of you who didn't vote for me: just make sure I don't know who you are. But overall, thanks. Mom and Dad for not watching TV."

Teresa Cook, Southwesterner Editor
"Thanks to my staff for their hard work and patience. Thank you, Mr. Norman, for being a wonderful Christian example and sponsor. thanks, S.A. officers, for wanting to offer only the best for the students and using your God-given talents to reach that goal.. Most of all, I thank God for enabling me to edit the paper; I couldn't have done it without Him. May God's richest blessings be yours!"

Jimmy Moreno, Campus Ministries
"And so on this grand occasion, I want to express my gratitude to whoever handed me this elegant award. It has been enjoyable to be a part of Campus Ministries in '87-'88. My sincere thanks goes to each Campus Ministry leader for taking charge of their particular program and for consistently accomplishing their specific tasks. And, finally, my hearty thanks goes to two people (who live off-campus) for all their support — my parents."

Carlos Vargas, Treasurer
"This was an unforgettable year. I learned to say "NO." Not to drugs, but to your SA officers. Chrissie wanted to publish the ultimate book (with gold pages); Tresa wanted to offer a party every week at the Anatole in Dallas; and Jimmy wanted to pay mileage to everyone participating in the Sabbath-morning walk. Millions of dollars were not available, so everyone humbly accepted what was given and made a great effort to offer SAC the best possible. I thank all SA members for giving me the opportunity to serve you."

Tresa Noodel, Social Activities Director
"Faculty, SA Members, and Fellow Party Animals: Thank you for your support of the SA activities! The next time you see Mr. Norman go out of your way to give him a big greeting. Let him know how much you appreciate what he does in the SA. As for me, I hope that you've had fun and managed to gain new life-long friends in the process. Remember: fight for your right to party!"

Some of the more alert of you may have noticed that the white street signs in Keene are too long on one end. If you have looked closely at these signs, you have observed that imprinted thereon is a street number and a circle K, the Kiwanis Club International symbol.

You may then have wondered why all Keene street signs aren't like this, why the number and symbol aren't painted, or why there's a circle K there at all.

The story goes like this:

In the early 1960s, there was a thriving Kiwanis club in Keene. One of the projects the members undertook was putting up street signs in Keene. They raised the money for these signs, including the extra money it took to get street numbers imprinted on each sign along with the name and Kiwanis club symbol. (The club wanted the street numbers so people would know where on each particular street they were.) It is unclear whether or not the members put the signs up themselves, but the signs did cover the entire town as it was at that time.

Later in the 60's, the Keene Kiwanis club died out mysteriously and has never been revived.

Six years ago, the Keene Public Works Department repainted all the street signs. Although they left the old signs black and white, they did not repaint the circle K symbols or the street numbers. (After all, the Kiwanis club no longer exists in Keene. As for the numbers, I guess it must not be as important to people nowadays to know where on the street they are.)

(The Communication Club, or "The Sweathogs" has been an organization on campus ever since 1973. Bob Mendenhall was asked to tell the "Mizpah" anything he thought we should know about his club.)

I'm sorry, no one will tell you anything, because we all want to maintain "plausible deniability."

Actually, the nickname "Sweathogs originated with a TV show popular when the club first began. The students on the show "Welcome Back Kotter" called themselves "Sweathogs," and because the early communication students here at that time carried on some of the same traditions as their TV counterparts, the nickname was meaningful and somehow stuck.

A few years ago, while meditating in the shower, I arrived at a "plausible" acronym for SWEATHOGS. It is: Students Whose Experience As Telecommunicators Has Only Gotten Started.

Somehow, not even that helps.

COWABUNGA!

Eric Anderson, president; Robin Braden, vice president; Samuela Stankovic, secretary treasurer; Bob and Bev Mendenhall, sponsors.

Cowabunga! Ski Club: an SAC campus organization devoted to the desires of anyone wishing to ski, wanting to learn to ski, or craving a frozen, sometimes mangled body! Skiing is fun! Just ask a Cowabunga! member.

Each year during spring break the club crams itself into so many vans and ventures out into the cold of the Colorado Rockies. Keystone, Colorado, has been the invasion spot for the last nine years, according to club sponsors Bob and Bev Mendenhall.

Although it is hard to believe, some do not enjoy their experience on the slopes and complain "it's too cold," "it's too much work," or "I'll never learn this!" By fall semester of the next year however, the complainees don't believe that they ever said such things and are rearing to go again.

Donna Sue Hamilton

The club originated with Snoopy of "Peanuts" fame, who, as he imagines himself to be the Great Downhill Racer at the top of a mountain, yells "COWABUNGA!" as he contemplates the thrill and exhilaration of the run he is about to make.

The club sponsors are Bob and Bev Mendenhall, who have taken a group to the central Colorado Rockies every spring break since 1971. In the spring of that year, the two of them made the trip alone to Winter Park, west of Denver. The next year four students — all four now alumni — went along. Accompanying the Mendenhalls that spring break of 1972 were Steve Cavender, Mary Lou Mendenhall (Bob's sister), Dan Voth, and Barbara (White) Voth. The six had such a great time together there was some talk about calling the college to say they were snowed in just so they could ski a few extra days. Passing the time on lift rides up the slopes, the skiers began to wonder if there might be support at Southwestern for an organized club ski trip every spring.

The next year 15 or 20 students and community residents made the trip, and the rest is history . . .

As many as around 50 have made the trip annually, with an average group size being around 30. The COWABUNGA! Skiers have based out of Denver, Winter Park, Breckenridge, and Silverthorne, but now usually stay at the base of Keystone Mountain. On any year the club members include long-time skiers as well as some students who have never seen snow before.

See the mailbox with the bills,
Credit bills!
What a world of merriment the envelope fortells!
One of spending, spending, spending,
Almost every single night!
While through the malls you're wending
With credit card delight;
Buying stuff, stuff, stuff;
In a sort of frantic huff.
In a giant feeding frenzy that would give a sane man chills!
From the bills, bills, bills, bills
bills, bills, bills.
From the making and the paying of the bills.

II

See the mailbox stuffed with bills,
Water bills!
What a tale of liquid waste the written figures tell!
From the faucet that won't stop,
Even when you shut it off! —
Wafts the molten-liquid notes,
Of the drip,
What a liquid ditty floats
To the insomniac that listens, while he stares
At the roof!
Oh, from out the sounding sink,
What a wondrous symphony voluminously wells!
How it swells!
How it dwells
On the morning! — How it tells
Of the coffee that you'll drink
As you're making and you're paying
For the bills, bills, bills, bills —
Bills, bills, bills.
For the making and the paying of the bills.

III

See the mailbox full of bills,
Electric bills!
What a tale of kilowatts the little numbers tell!
When the figures hit your sight,
How you scream out your affright!
Too much horrified to speak,
You can only shriek, shriek,
Out of tune,
In a minor fit of madness, now, you call up TPL,
In a final, frantic effort, now, to stop the flow of bills
Piling higher, higher, higher
Like a kind of funeral pyre,
But with resolute endeavor.

IV

Now — now to pay or never,
You write checks till your face is blue.
For the bills, bills, bills!
What a tale their terror tells
Of despair!
How they cost, and mount, and cost!
But the money you outpour
Disappears into the vacuum of the night.
Yet the wallet fully knows,
By the op'ning
And the closing,
How the money ebbs and flows.
And the wallet yet can tell,
By the op'ning
And the closing,
How the money ebbs and flows,
By the sinking and the swelling of the omnipresent bills —
Of the bills, —
Of the bills, bills, bills, bills,
Bills, bills, bills.
By the making and paying of the bills.

V

See the phone bell ring with calls —
Warning calls!
What a world of solemn thought their monody compels!
In the silence of the night,
How we shiver with affright
At the melancholy menace of their tone!
For every note that floats,
From the dust within your throat,
Is a groan.
And the callers — bill collectors,
They that feed on errant payers,
All alone,
And who calling, calling, calling,
In that muffled monotone,
Feel a glory in so rolling
On the human heart a stone —
They are neither man or woman —
They are neither brute nor human —
They are ghouls!
And their King it is who calls —
As he calls, calls, calls,
Calls
For money for the bills!
And his merry stomach swells
With the money from the bills!
And he dances, and he yells;
Making calls, calls, calls,
Mostly during suppertime,
Wanting money for the bills
For the bills, bills, bills —
For the paying of the bills;
Making calls, calls, calls,
As he yells, yells, yells.
In a happy Runic rhyme,
For the paying of the bills —
Of the bills, bills, bills —
For the paying of the bills —
Of the bills, bills, bills, bills,
Bills, bills, bills —
To the making and the paying of the bills.

Dear Mrs. Simpson,
We came down to hear Malcolm Forbes, but the highlight of our day was your fantastic food.

October 28's assembly was the "S.A. SPEECH!!!

(Reflect for a moment on a George Michael song)

There are things that you meet
And things that you don't
But a deadline that's not met
Will make the budget groan

There are pages pushed aside
And pages that must go
And to complete the SA pages
Your speech has got to show

I've said I won't kick you
Won't cave in your head
I've just begged you nicely
While my face's turning red!

I want your speech!
I want your words!
I want your speech!
I want your words!

A speech is something you can write
I've been searching always
For yours every single night!

A speech can be creative, a speech can be real fun,
The best thing about them is
They make the presses run, run, run.

"And now comes that subject of mystery . . . the proverbial rkroom. One almost hears the cackle of witches and the acrid ench of their brew of mouse ears, bat wing, and horse sweat. Well aybe the darkroom isn't quite like a scene out of Macbeth, but the emicals do have a certain characteristic acrid odor (nice way to say ink) and some of the characters you find working in the darkroom ould give the witches a run for their money in the hunch and stir partment.

The darkroom operates under two basic schools:

1. Those who wish to reproduce print after print exactly the same. This type is generally of a perfectionist nature.
2. Those who wish to get a recognizable print. Perfection is not in their vocabulary. When they get two prints from the same negative that look different (but still acceptable), the prints are said to have individual character. This type generally prefers rationalization to frustration.

Third World Photography definitely falls into category 2. To see amples of this technique you should refer to the appendix or The urnal of Irreproduceable Results."

Arkansas-Louisiana Conference

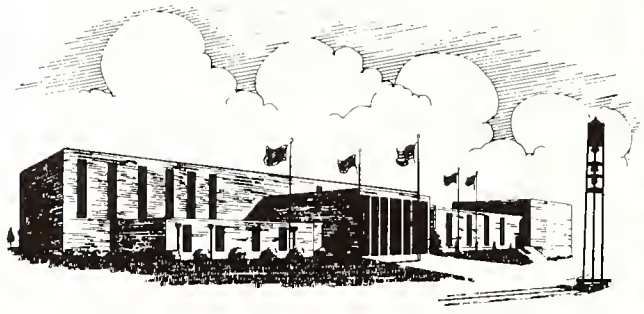
Of Seventh-Day Adventists

Congratulations to the graduates of Southwestern Adventist College . . .

The year 1988 is the 100th anniversary of the organization of the Arkansas Conference and we celebrate this year with a dedication and a rediscovery of the early pioneer faith of this great Advent Movement which beat so strongly in their hearts that continents felt the pulsations.

In view of distressing world conditions, the challenge comes to every young man and young woman to enter the Master's service — a service that pays big and lasting dividends.

Our College Prep Institution



Ozark Adventist Academy

To the fulfillment of this task, we dedicate our all.

Congratulations Seniors

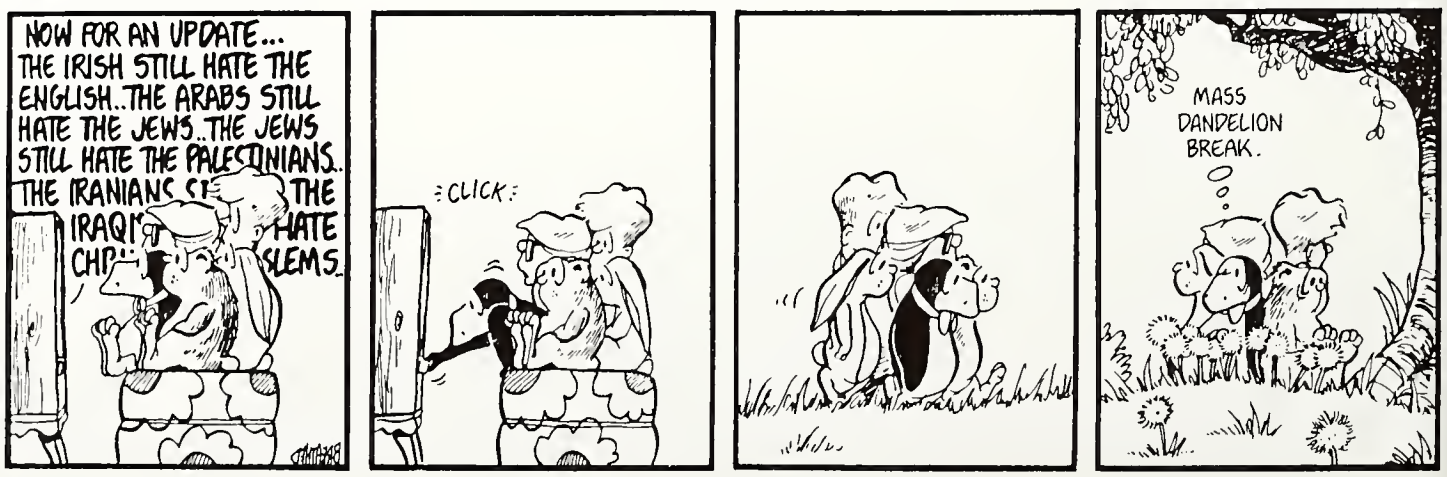
TIME

Olliemania swept the U.S. as 55 million TV viewers watched Oliver North's testimony for six days in July during Iran-Contra hearings (his lawyer was "not a potted plant") * Irangate: Tower Commission declared Reagan permitted shadow government to conduct foreign policy, resulting in arms sale to Iran for hostages, and channelled profits to Nicaraguan contras * Pearlygate: Heaven can wait — PTL sex scandel involved Jim and Tammy Bakker, Jessica Hahn ("I'm not a bimbo" she says while posing topless for Playboy), and Tammy's mascara brush * In January the New York Stock Exchange Dow Jones Industrial Average topped 2,000 for the first time. On October 19 (Black Monday) the DJIA dropped 508 points. In six hours of trading $500,000,000,000.00 went plbbt. Five hundred billion dollars — equalling the Gross National Product of France; 3,571 Empire State Buildings; a 1,432 pound diamond (or 71,000 Hope diamonds), or cab fare for 50 trips to planet Pluto * Persian Gulf — Kuwait asked for U.S. Navy escorts through Gulf due to Iran-Iraq warfare. After an attack on the USS Stark and other incidents, American warships were joined by ships from five Western allies * Gorbachev came to Washington to sign the largest arms reduction in history * Miami Herald caught Democratic candidate Gary Hart in a motel room with model Donna Rice. Hart dropped bid for Presidency in May only to pick it up in December * 18-month-old Jessica McClure was rescued from a Midland, Texas dry well after two and a half days * Oral Roberts told his followers he would be "called home" if he did not receive $8 million in donations by April 1. Said Roberts after exceeding his goal, "I'm on fire, and I'm ready to go." * Adventist World radio station KSDA began broadcasting to half the area of the globe from Guam * The Constitution celebrated its 200th birthday * Platoon received an Oscar for Best Picture * Paul Newman finally won an Oscar (Best Actor in The Color of Money) while deaf actress Marlee Matlin signed her acceptance speech for Best Actress in Children of a Lesser God * Les Miserables had a record year on stage * Steve Winwood's Higher Love won the Grammy for Best Record of the Year * Whitney Houston was queen of the pop-charts * Cinema hits included Broadcast News, The Untouchables, Beverly Hills Cop II, Dirty Dancing and Fatal Attraction * SNL's Church Lady — "How Special" * The tabloids swore Charles and Di were on the brink of divorce after six years * Giants beat Broncos 39-20 in the Super Bowl * AIDS claimed 6,500+ U.S. victims *



CAPSULE — What happened in 1987

Skipper Dennis Conner brought back the America's Cup after it left the U.S. for the first time in 132 years * TV smashes included L.A. Law, The Cosby Show, Family Ties and Moonlighting * Minnesota Twins beat St. Louis Cardinals 4-2 in the 7th game of the World Series * California Shake n' Bake — The worst earthquake since 1971 hit followed by a record 108° heat wave * The newest fads were miniskirts, disposable cameras, acid-washed denims, Yuffies (young urban failures), Spuds Mackenzie, and Fawn Hall * The speed limit was raised to 65 on rural interstates * Margaret Thatcher became the first British Prime Minister since 1826 to win three terms in a row * Hunks of the year were Kevin Costner (Untouchables); Corbin Bernsen, Harry Hamlin and Jimmy Smits of L.A. Law; Dennis Quaid (The Big Easy and Suspect); Patrick Swayze (Dirty Dancing); Mark Harmon, whose stint on Moonlighting produced the highest ratings ever; Charlie Sheen (Platoon, Wall Street); and Brigitte Nielsen (Rambo's six-foot ex-wife-to-be) * Released in June and inspired by the AIDS epidemic, George Michael's song promoting monogamy (whose title we were requested to refrain from publishing here) is banned by 75 radio stations, played only after 8 p.m. in Britain and reached Number Two on the charts by August * Billy Joel got Muscovites rocking during his Soviet tour and released his Konsert album back in the U.S.A. * "Evan's," a fast-food restaurant based in the basement of Heritage Hall was shoved through red-tape and projected to open in January 1988 * Surrogate mother Mary Beth Whitehead lost Baby M to William and Elizabeth Stern, the father and adoptive mother * Robert Bork lost a Supreme Court nomination after five days of grilling on philosophy. Douglas Ginsburg, nominee Number Two, lost after admitting to having smoked marajuana in the 70s. Anthony Kennedy was nominated and won * The last wild California condor was captured after a seven-month chase while the last Dusky Seaside Sparrow died * Died: William Casey, Ray Bolger, Robert Preston, Danny Kaye, Lorne Green, Woody Herman, Maria von Trapp, Dick Howser, Clare Boothe Luce, Jackie Gleason, Fred Astaire, Liberace, Rita Hayworth, Lee Marvin, Randolph Scott, and Andy Warhol ("It would be very glamorous to be reincarnated as a great big ring on Liz Taylor's finger.") *Oh Yeah. "In Tonight's International Nudes . . ."

There are more radios in the United States than there are telephones in the entire world. There are approximately 10,128 radio stations in the United States. And with a selection of 10,128 stations, every listener in the United States chose KJCR-FM, Keene that one night and heard the headline above. or at least that's what Kevin Wells thought that fateful newscast when he exposed his flair for the bare facts.

Mistakes are expected, but sometimes they're not only embarrassing for the announcer but rough on the listener, too — "I was reading a public service announcement for Easter Seals on a Saturday night," effuses KJCR announcer Brandeis Hall, "and I pronounced 'handicapped' with an 'r' in a very bad place. Mike and Karen Cruz were listening and they had this roaring debate over whether or not I had said what I had said. Mike came and asked me a few days later if I had said what I had said and made sure that I had said what he thought I said."

"My worst foul-up was not my fault!" says Mindy Woods. "I got a story from the Associated Press news printer that said Linus Wright of the Dallas School District was to be named Undersecretary of Execution. I kind of wondered about that. We're taking this capitol punishment thing kinda seriously, aren't we? Well, after three newscasts naming Wright to this unusual office, I got a new story naming him as Undersecretary of Education. I suppose the two titles could be related in some ways . . ."

"I'm just glad the Nicaraguan Contra rebels aren't foremost in the news anymore," Nora Peppers sighs with relief. "I turned into Barbara Walters — no matter how hard I tried not to, I always said 'Nicawaguwan Contwa webels' during newscasts."

Jim Landelius' first goof quickly turned into his second. "I mis-pronounced something and started the next record. I leaned back in my chair and said 'Strike one!' My mike was still on."

"Then there was the announcer who reported some activity by 'the leftist lesbianese army' instead of the leftist Lebanese army," reports Bob Mendenhall, KJCR General Manager. "Back Announcing can be a kick, too. The DJ announces the artist and the song and vice versa. It looks fine on paper, but it's wild on the air! On paper it's "Jesus Never Forgets"; Dino Kartsonakis, but spoken it's 'Jesus never forgets Dino Kartsonakis,' 'Sixteen singing men in a cave,' and 'In the garden with Marilyn Cotton'."

"We haven't become so professional that we've forgotten how to have fun at doing radio. While we should have the deepest respect for reality, we should not let it rule our lives." — Bob Mendenhall CLC.

Here on this page, we laugh at ourselves; but we have a tremendous amount to sing about: In February 1987, KJCR moved to its new facilities and in April began broadcasting joyful Christian radio in stereo. The station currently boasts a library of over 20,000 individual songs. "We could broadcast for two months without repeating any same song by the same artist," Bob Mendenhall reports. "We started broadcasting with compact discs in May 1987 and have not bought anything but CDs since." Approximately 16-20 students work at KJCR each year. "I have former students who are working in TV, radio, public relations ... in every communication field imaginable," Mendenhall says. "We have student program directors, development directors, news-directors and all our programs are produced by students. We're just as listenable as other stations in the Metroplex and I believe that some of our students are better than some of the professionals out there. We have star players, and some utility players, but we're a team. It's all a team effort. We do a good job and we have fun."

The Committee Of 100 Cafeteria

The Woman Behind It All

She stalked an unsuspecting Victor Brown and poured ice water down his back at a school picnic, while Bob Mendenhall gave play by play commentary on her bizarre version of "Wild Kingdom." She has been known to send Keith Dobbs cakes with little "surprises" in them. She plopped a chocolate creme pie in Dan Yancy's face to celebrate his graduation. She waved away students who complained about rock hard hot dog buns and told them to quit bothering her — and when she thought they weren't looking she checked on the buns.

Anna Simpson. Southwestern's wizard in the kitchen for 20 years. "She's a sensational lady," says Dr. Hal Wright. "When the accreditation committee was evaluating SAC, they were impressed enough with the cafeteria to mention Anna by name."

Anna runs a tight ship at the cafeteria. "She knows how to be tough if she has to," claims Scott DeHart. "She can really fuss at you! I've had her get mad at me before, and since I just stood there and smiled at her, she eventually started laughing. She's a softie. She likes people." Anna doesn't allow many shenanigans in her cafeteria, but she isn't above some monkeyshines here and there. A female graduate recalls antics in which Anna participated: "She'd play referee between tables when people started throwing things at each other. She'd scold the guys; then they'd cry for justice and send her back to fuss at us. I think she got just as much of a kick out of it as we did." Perhaps so. Perhaps she has stayed with us so long because she's waiting to see what kind of grief the students are going to give her next. "They're a lot of the reason that I've stayed as long as I have. I really enjoy being around the young people," Anna says.

One creative grief-maker, Erik Harrison, recalls leaning against a refrigerator, moving it several inches across the floor. A cafeteria worker yelled to Anna that he was making trouble. She took out after Harrison who cowered behind a door. "She found me," Harrison says, "and started waving her fists at me. I stood there cringing and then said 'Hi there, Mrs. Simpson! You sure had nice buns today.' She looked at me. 'Erik, why don't you get some ice cream?' She took me over and made sure my favorite ice cream was there and that I got lots and lots."

There is a vicious rumor that Anna has a whoopee cushion in her office and that Marvin Gunter sat on it. The rumor is true. CLC

This Spud's For You

As a resident of the state of Idaho, I was alread considered a celebrity by the potato population whe my agent came to me with an offer. SAC was lookin for a master of disguise — a stuntman capable o death-defying feats. The part involved a thrice-dail appearance in their Committee of 100 Cafeteria. must be fluent in all phases of culinary employment baked — with sour cream; boiled — with rigid butte or gravy; creamed — buried alive under something hashed — not just for breakfast anymore; mashed – great for table-top sculpting; fried — drowned i boiling oil, my specialty, by request only. I turne down the part. My agent brought me an offer fron Luby's. The big time!

Mr. Potato once turned down an offer from Dr. Woolley's favorit hang-out, the Redwood Inn. He's got his pride.

The Salt Saga

Can we borrow your salt?
Sure.
Salt, please.
We gave it to Rindy and Cheddie at the next table.
Ask those girls for some.
Melitta, Darilynn? Can we borrow your saltshaker?
Sure.
Thanks.
Thatthager migrphory patr.
Don't talk with food in your mouth. What'd you say?
I said, there's a saltshaker migration.
From their table to ours?
Yeah, and from our table to another.
So?
It's neat to think about.
How special! You're nuts.
Granted. But think about it; a saltshaker could start his life by the conveyor belt and work his way to the Fisher Dining Room.
How, by walking or shaking, or Sheridan throwing him at Ralph?
By what happened here; being needed at the table next to where he is.
What if he refuses to budge?
Well, I suppose another saltshaker would do.
Exactly, so it isn't automatically assumed that he'd make it to the other end of the cafeteria.
That's dumb. If a saltshaker needs himself moved, he doesn't plant himself and cling to tables that have saltshakers.
He might.
All right. So he refuses to go elsewhere. There are still other saltshakers.
Sure there are, but then that saltshaker is wasted.
True, true, case resolved. Pass the salt, please.
Ah, he won't move.

Adventures At The Rex E. Callicot

My friends and I study the humans that visit the Rex E. Callicott Student Park. It's a good idea to keep an eye on them, because they come often, and we're never quite sure what they're going to do next. Today is my turn to make sure none of them sneak up on us. All around me, my friends are gossiping with each other, sleeping in the grass, or lazily floating on the surface of the water. My name is Q.E.

I check the landscape for any signs of trouble. The only trouble today was a group of large humans that invaded the field and began wildly flinging a saucer-shaped object. They didn't seem to have any control over it, and several times it nearly beaned us.

What I was really worrying about was the appearance of the smaller humans — little squealing creatures who chase us all full speed. They, and some of the deeper-voiced larged humans, seem to enjoy terrorizing us this way. If any of us see one coming, our instructions are to call for a full-scale retreat into the safer waters of the pond.

But what is this pond coming to? It's not always safe there, either! Just between you and me, I think that some of these humans are only paddling with one web foot. The man in charge of the place across the road, where most of the large humans come from, came and waterskiied in our pond! You should have seen it! I think he'd gone to too many board meetings and just flipped out, poor man.

Sometimes the humans walk over the bridge into the tall cages carrying paddle-like objects, and small, round fuzzy things. I saw one of the round shapes in the grass once and tried to nibble on it, and found it to be unpalatable. Often, huge crowds will go to the field just beyond the pond and throw around an oval, brown object, all the while screaming and carrying on.

Not all of them are so noisy, though. We are totally ignored by the humans that come down to the park in pairs, who sit on the bridge and talk quietly. Occasionally, these pairs will bring a blanket and food with them and eat their meal on the grass. We stand around and serenade them for awhile, hoping for a dinner invitation. Sometimes a small group will congregate together in the evening and sing. We like to float closer to those groups and sing along with them as the sun goes down.

They seem to enjoy tossing things at us, especially at those times when we sing along. That's exciting enough to make us forgive the small, screaming humans, since often they're the ones hurling food at us. It's really a struggle out there when we're being fed, because everyone wants some! I've found that the best policy is to swim up close to the bridge and look as pitiful as possible.

Wait . . . a station wagon just drove up, and there are people getting out carrying a bag. Is it . . . Is it? Yes, it's pieces of bread! Oh, boy! Hey! Everybody! Bread alert! Look! Food! Me first!

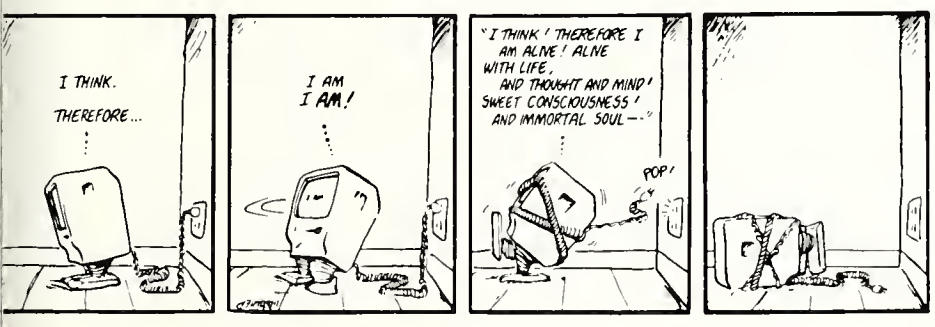
"This Computer Hates Me!"

Trixie And Her Men

SAC ComCen

History is full of notorious females. Texas had Belle Starr. Clyde had Bonnie. Elijah had Jezebel, and Samson had a close shave of the fatal kind with Delilah. Southwestern Adventist College has its own infamous female. Trixie.

Trixie is a BTI 8000 mainframe computer. She was born December 7, 1981, on campus and has been running it and the little lives moving around on it ever since. If you doubt that, come gaze into the student terminal room at term paper time. Watch crazed students turn into Neanderthals, scratching and scrambling for terminals. Look at their countenances as Trixie crashes just as they are about to finish their papers due in 40 minutes. See them weeping inconsolably on the Boss Man's desk, begging him to return unto them that which they failed to save. Many departments, as well as students' futures, come to a painful grinding halt if Trixie isn't feeling well. When the computer goes down, so does everything else. And Trixie has a mind of her own.



I THINK.
THEREFORE...
I AM.
I AM!
"I THINK! THEREFORE I AM ALIVE! ALIVE WITH LIFE... AND THOUGHT AND MIND! SWEET CONSCIOUSNESS! AND IMMORTAL SOUL—"
POP!

Life with Trixie can be fun, though. If it were not for Trixie's electronic mail system, it would be nearly impossible for most students to keep in touch with each other. Trixie provides students a way to communicate with friends with conflicting schedules.

The electronic bulletin board, known simply as "The Board," is a great source of entertaining reading, editorials, ads, philosophy and thoughts for the day.

Great pieces of literature are composed:

Gonna lay down my floppies,
Down by the BTI!
Down by the BTI!
Down by the BTI!
Gonna lay down my floppies,
Down by the BTI!
Ain't gonna study core no more.

Well, I ain't gonna study core no more,
Ain't gonna study core no more.
Ain't gonna study core no more.
Well, I ain't gonna study core no more,
Ain't gonna study core no more.
Ain't gonna study core no more.

Great truths are shared:

"It is better to have loved, and lost, than to have never eaten an ice cream sundae."

"Why does night often follow day? Why doesn't day follow night? And, why don't we have intermittent periods of night and day, instead of just having one follow the other?"

The meaning of life is discussed:

Don't take life so seriously . . . it's not like it's permanent.

As is the nature of God:

I was having a discussion yesterday about what was created by God and what was created by man. The one person I was talking with, suggested that root beer was made by God since He made all the ingredients. I suggested that man put those ingredients together.

The discussion progressed into whether or not God created hurricanes because He made the elements in hurricanes.

How do you all feel on the subject? Lisa.

i am taking lisa home this weekend and hopefully my esteemed father can help her on the subject of who did what. if not, tune in monday morning! poor lisa. can you imagine what it's like being her?

Another in a series of new flashes involving your favorite holy man and mine, yes, that's right, Oral Roberts:

"Evangelist Oral Roberts says the Lord has warned him to tell his flock that they must keep up the contributions. He says God let him live because he raised more than eight (M) million dollars. Roberts says he'll need that amount every year 'until Jesus returns'.". From the campus of Southwestern Adventist College, I'm Jim Landelius reporting for News 88. Back to you Dan Rather!

Do you suppose God would accept post-dated checks?

Yes, life with Trixie is always exciting. Trixie: Love, her or die a computer illiterate.

Any resemblance between the headline and what Jolene Dart wailed on her first day of Trixie-processing is entirely accurate. CLC

"Dream When You're Feeling Blue" . . . And When You

"The alarm went off and I woke with a start. It was D-Day . . . Due Day," says LuAnn Venden. "I'd just gotten one and a half hours of sleep after working two days straight on my term paper for Dr. Woolley. Because of computer problems and procrastination, I didn't have a hard copy of it. I rushed to the ComCen to run it off and found that the computer had crashed. Oh, no. Horrors. And the term paper was due in half an hour! After Mr. Sowder sadistically assured me that the computer wouldn't be up all day, I realized there was nothing left to do but take the rough draft of my paper, head for the Mabee Center, and beg for mercy.

"Head bowed dejectedly, I slowly walked down the sidewalk. Glancing up, I realized something was wrong. The Mabee Center had disappeared. 'Oh, terrific,' I thought. 'This means I can't turn in my term paper!' I didn't care about the building; I just wanted to turn in my paper. I frantically began interrogating everyone I met, but nobody seemed to know where the building disappeared to. Finally, someone informed me that the Mabee Center had been moved to Fort Worth," LuAnn continues.

"I didn't have a car so I began walking to Fort Worth. After several hours I found the Mabee Center — next to the Water Gardens.

"I found Dwight Seek in the lobby dressed like Indiana Jones, complete with hat and three days worth of stubble. He was holding a smoking gun in his hand, and had a remarkably determined look on his face.

"He took my arm and said, 'I had to do it, LuAnn. I knew that you didn't have your term paper ready; I killed Dr. Woolley.'

"He ran out the door and I walked down the hall to Dr. Woolley's office. Sure enough, there he was, looking calm, peaceful, scholarly and dead. I dropped my rough draft on his desk and walked out the door, out of the Mabee Center, and down the streets of Fort Worth.

"And then I woke up. It was D-Day . . . and I didn't have a hard copy of my paper . . ."

The dreams we have at night are in many ways influenced by something in everyday waking life, but they reshape and re-create that material into new and illogical forms. A dream can reflect a person's unconscious wishes, needs, and conflicts. When you are closest to waking, your dreams are apt to be abo recent events, and events near bedtim will most strongly affect what yc dream about. If one particular proble weighs heavily on the sleeper's mind, will often show up in dreams.

Picture a stagecoach on a two day tr with no stops. The camera zooms in c three figures perched on top amidst a the luggage. It's Jerry Mahn and Bra deis Hall and Dr. Andrew Woolley. He teaching them French. Why? Wh knows. "Les fleurs," he enunciate "Laye flerz," they reply. "No! No!" h shrieks. "Say it right!! Les fleurs!" "Let jump," says Brandeis. "Let's throw hi off," says Jerry. Upon reaching the destination they had almost been drive out of their minds. Brandeis woke u then. And she hated Dr. Woolley for week.

"I placed the key I had obtained fro a local (for a small bribe) in the old loc and carefully turned it," Donald Hine an '87 graduate, explains. "A small clic announced success; I would finally b able to enter the ancient crypt; at last would learn the secrets of this sma room at the bottom of the ruin. Th door was old, and strange writings on foretold of strange and imaginative pur ishments for those who dared to ente but the unknown beckoned and I ha not the power to resist. The hinge squealed in protest as I forced the doo to allow me entrance. I had been told c the wonders of this place, but nothing t prepare me for this.

LuAnn Venden has dreamed of being an editor. Christine Cummings dreams of being a writer. Here they are co-writers and Christine was the editor. What a nightmare!

Term Paper's Due And The Mabee Center Disappeared . . .

"The small room was filled with deris, and unimaginable treasures were cattered everywhere. At my feet was a late of ancient food and spread over he walls were murals, rotting with age.
There was a pile of papers covered with ndecipherable writings. I began to careully crawl through the debris, and ap-roached what had to be the resting lace of the ancient one. Boldly, I pulled ack the filthy rags (once ornately dec-rated) and exposed the poorly preerved body. The face was ashen with unken cheeks. I was beginning to study he hand, when it moved, reached for he rags it had been covered in and ulled them over its head once more. It egan to groan, 'Leave me alone, I have arly classes tomorrow'!"

"That's the only nightmare I've had," Hines says. "I never liked the idea of lorm life."

Creation

I thank the Lord for allowing us to experience and enjoy more and more of His creation!

The ocean waves are full of power, so much power. Oh how majestic and beautiful they are.

As I sit upon the sandy beach admiring God's creation, I can't help but rejoice! Every heartbeat brings yet another prayer of thanks.

The waves keep rushing in, further and further. I think I would sit here for hours and yet never seem to get enough. My eyes and soul keep wanting more. The ocean is so beautiful, how could anyone refuse to take in such a wonder of God's Art?

Being here brings a feeling of fulfillment and happiness. I think I shall stay forever!

These Are My Thoughts of October 3

The cherry trees gone
Sound of the windmill
The taste of ripe pears
Lord, what's heaven like
Say, can i have my dog back
The one with the short tail
How about my white cat
Will the river flow cool
Warm straw piles too
Can angels cook like Grandma
Can i go swimming at night
Will the crows and owls fuss
Does the cream lay thick on the pans
Lord, do You have a place like that i really don't need wings
i'd rather walk barefoot
Is the mud sticky and cool
Do i need my glasses
Can i have recess just with You
i'll wash the boards and empty the trash
Teach me to read the stars

It was Tuesday, and Fred sat in class, watching the second hand slowly wind its way toward the 12. Only one hour and 19 minutes until class let out . . .

". . . is force over distance, which is different from power, which is force over area. Now, some of you may be a bit confused by this, so I'll try to explain it a different way. Say you're pushing a rock . . ."

Fred strained. The rock was heavy, but it was starting to move. He could feel the cool breeze coming from behind the rock, the breeze signifying the cave that the map had said was there.

The rock moved. It was just a few inches, but it left a crack big enough for him to squeeze into.

The cave had been well hidden, and even with the map, had been hard to find. But the makers of the cave (the same ones who hid the treasure inside it) hadn't realized that they would have to deal with the ingenuity and daring of Oklahoma Fred, the most dashing and famous of archaeologists.

He forced his way in, and found himself in a small antechamber. There it was. Written on the wall, were the instructions on how to find the treasure of Velcrofly, the ancient Mayan king.

They were clever, these Mayans. Anyone else would have expected the symbols to be translated direct into the Mayan language. However, Fred was smarter than that. Almost intuitively, he first cross-referenced all the symbols in his handy Sanscrit Dictionary, and then re-translated the resulting text into Rastafarian. He looked at the translation. It almost made sense! He studied it closer, trying to understan the cryptic message . . . "Whouldu plez ceekspl ain . . ."

"The difference between power and work, Fred?"

A Day In The Life

One day, as little Becky Raindrop and all her little friends were drifting over a town in North-Central Texas, she noticed that she was getting quite chilly. She sensed that something was happening to her, but she wasn't sure what it was. This frightened her and she became very nervous. All was going to turn out OK though because she soon noticed that her somewhat regular, drab body had turned into something very beautiful. Becky felt wonderful about herself as she and her friends began to slowly drift downward.

The pleasant drifting suddenly took a nasty turn. Tommy, who had also been transformed, hit some type of warm object and just kind of disappeared! Becky became afraid again. Would she end up as just another melted snowflake? Another friend, Jill, hit the dust. Some of her friends that she was watching seemed to be eaten by a really large, moving creature. What monsters! she thought.

Becky managed to avoid these horrible monsters, and landed safely on top of other successful snowflakes. She patiently waited for whatever was going to happen next. Suddenly, there was a roar similar to a hurricane, and George's life was snuffed out. He had been right beside her and now he was gone. Looking up, she thought she saw one of those horrible monsters, walking away from her. Boy, that was a close one!

All was quiet for a time, until she realized that she was being packed up against the snowflakes around her. She didn't know what was going on here, but her claustrophobia made her almost want to scream. (And if you've ever heard a snowflake scream, you know it's not a pretty sound.) Then came the most exciting moment of her life. She flew though the air faster than she had ever flown before. Things were just whizzing by not far below her. This was really fun — whatever it was.

Right in the middle of the thrills, Becky came to a sudden halt. Everything seemed to be breaking apart, and her friends were being scattered all over the place. As though this were not enough, Becky soon came in contact with a warm monster which might as well have been a fire-breathing dragon. She died that day, looking into the face of a happy, warm monster.

Written on the occasion of the snowball fights on campus during the November, 1986 snowfall.

The meaning of life, Part 1, by Wes Stoops

It was a cold winter's day. As Billy wandered across campus, he heard ragged breathing and a moan. He looked around and there on the sidewalk, he saw the crumpled body of Dr. May. He must have fallen off Scales Hall. It looked as if he were hurt badly.

This set Billy thinking . . .

What was life all about anyway? Why are we here? Is there a direction to all this, or are we just tiny flecks of protoplasm whirling eternally about the sun, meaningless, devoid of purpose?

He had to find out. He ran off in search of an answer, leaving Dr. May in a heap. This, of course, set Dr. May thinking, but his thoughts cannot be written here.

He went first to the United States government. They ruled over 240 million people. They should at least have an idea what was going on.

He went to the Department of the Interior, who referred him to the Department of Human Resources, who referred him to the Central Intelligence Agency, who referred him to the Internal Revenue Service. It was here that he found an answer. A 90-year-old clerk, responsible for mailing refunds, told him, "People exist to pay taxes."

But Billy thought that just wasn't right. It was obscene to think that he existed merely to keep the government in cash!

He thought some more, and decided on a different course of action. He went to Sears and Roebuck. Here were people who dealt with mankind on a day-to-day basis. They would know.

He was referred to the complaint department and from there to Customer Service. They referred him to Ladies' Undergarments, where again he found an answer. A young clerk told him, "People exist to buy goods."

"No!" he wailed, "It cannot be! We are more than money!"

So, he went to where he thought he should have gone first. If men of the world couldn't help him, maybe men of God could. He went to a church.

The secretary referred him to the Pastor of Lay Activities who referred him to the Director of Outreach, who referred him to the Treasurer. It was here that he found an answer. "People exist that they may join the Church."

"But why join the Church?"

"To pay tithe."

No! No! A thousand times no! People were more than money! He knew it! But, how to show them?

He thought long and hard on the subject and came up with an answer. Billy went to the bank and withdrew all his money. With this money he made a pile. On the pile he laid his credit cards, IRS number and Social Security card. He doused the stack with gasoline and set it aflame.

That ought to prove his point.

When the pile had burned to cinders, and the flame had gone out, Bily vanished.

Red checked days
of torn pages
"lost" books
chalk dust
indelible markings
with unerasable pens.
Broom in hand stumbling over scribbled notes
of unbirthed love
forbidden gum stuck
to sneaker-streaked floors.
Dusty desks
carved with crumbs
of forgotten sandwiches
forsaken for loud games
of ball turned into scrambled fights — then Refereeing
those tossled faces
with tear-grimy hands
eyes behind pigtails
guiltily pleading
their innocence.
Clock chimes four ungraded papers
beside empty red pens
line the walnut desk
where an hour before
young bodies clustered —
Eager to learn and not so eager trying and scared
to accomplish the possible
trusting, defiant,
mischievous.
What is life worth
to day after day
teach faded jeans
for a pocket of change
never meeting
yesterday's bills?
Senseless delight
— to some —
is the wonder of questioning minds
wrapped in knowledge
just learned.
Yet, in the heart
of every student
energy is birthed
and bottled
its source untapped
behind a locked door
Because no one has dug deeply enough
or dared to take time
to step beyond
those vulnerable walls
of strength
To discover a child
struggling with life
full of love
for the one who custom-makes the key.

THE RAISIN

Men of fame recall their glories, ordinary men their stories.
But to tell a tale of Salads might be thought to be a bore.
But the Clarion call of duty and the Culinary beauty,
Of a salad fresh and fruity makes me hasten to the chore,
To the telling of the wrinkled seedless tale I have in store,
Truth I tell you, Less or more

You may trust my recollection, how the Salad dressing section,
Passed the lady's strict inspection just as many times before.
How the Crocks were all in order and upon the gleaming border,
Of the deck was no disorder; not a spot was on the floor
And the railing and the sneezbar matched the spotless gleaming floor.
One could not have wished for more.

As I stood in admiration of this scene of sanitation,
I was proud of the temptation to the palate that it bore.
For the fare upon the platter would have made a stone's mouth water.
People who would not grow fatter should have stayed behind the door.
This the scene that fateful morning as we opened up the door.
Ready for the lunchtime chore.

Long and hard I'd learned the lesson of the lady's great obsession,
How that those in her possession, place in cleanliness such store.
Having come to see that clearly, nothing tortures more severly,
Than to see a blob of dressing or a spot upon the floor.
Mushroom, olive, egg, or carrot, cheese or pickle on the floor.
Nothing can disturb me more.

On the morning I have mentioned, I was resolute intentioned,
That no earthly intervention on the salad deck would score,
Half a mark of imperfection and the look of every section,
Would reflect the stern protection of this one-man cleaning corps,
Of this one who hates with passion, to see spots upon the floor.
Spotless here forevermore.

Soon amid the elbow bumping and the salad dressing dumping,
I beheld a raisin jumping from its crock onto the floor.
"Stop!" I cried with sudden waking. "That's a nightmare in the making.
No such freedom you'll be taking, get thee back into the store.
I have no desire at all to see you smashed upon the floor.
Get thee back and jump no more."

For of all the food that's falling, there is nothing more appalling,
Nothing to my soul more galling than a raisin on the floor.
For a raisin's way of sticking leaves you bending, stooping, picking,
Scraping gooey purple pulp from off the porous serving floor.
Truly cleaning after raisins is a most disgusting chore.
It repels me to the core.

But the fruit was understanding, not a word of my commanding,
Nor did heed my loud demanding as I charged him with a roar.
But betook himself to flitting, Not a spot did he miss hitting,
Nor had any thought of quitting till at last he'd reached the floor.
Till at last he and his brothers should lie smashed upon the floor.
To him life meant nothing more.

Then said I, "I'll catch that rebel, When I do he'll not be able,
Evermore in fact or fable thus to flaunt his purple gore."
Then commenced a frenzied chasing, all my dignity debasing.
All among the students racing, chasing him across the floor.
"Wrinkled grape you'll not escape me, just as none have done before."
This I shrieked and chased the more.

But the raisin now beguiling me to threatening and reviling,
Led me to the students filing past the counter through the door.
Was enough to stop and bind me in my tracks upon the floor.
Every raisin in the building followed fast upon the floor.
On their leader went before.

Back to the bar then I went racing, all the raisin's path retracing,
Hardly eager for the facing of the scene that lay before.
For I know that students talking, never watch where they are walking
And that soon a million raisins would lie smashed upon the floor.
And the ghastly purple path led to the horror on the floor.
It appeared there'd been a war.

And the raisin never sitting, still is flitting, still is flitting.
And still he leads his brothers all about the serving floor.
I, his nature not withstanding, seek to pierce his understanding
Still persistently demanding that he stay off of the floor.
"Tell me, tell me how long, raisin, will you stain the spotless floor?"
Quoth the raisin, "Evermore."
